Guard island after an emergency radio call.

The youth, a sophomore Pascagoula High School, had praise for all who helped with the rescue operation, and particularly for Dennis Aikens, who held the spear steady so it would not penetrate further.

"He saved me a lot of pain," Mike said.

"I'm on crutches today — I hope to go back to school tomorrow," he added.

Mike and three others went to the island Friday and were joined by 20 other Sea Explorers of the Kiwanis-sponsored Ship 234 Saturday.

Immediate first aid was given by Skipper Jack Strahan, boatswain's mate Rob Ford, apprentice seaman John Jubinville and Aikens, a guest of the group.

Communications officer Jim Blair put out a distress call on the ship's citizen band radio unit.

He contacted the station operated by Mrs. Billy Moore of Gautier who notified the Coast Guard and Eddie McElroy, head of Pascagoula Rescue and Recovery Squad.

In less than an hour McElroy and Coast Guardsmen Gerald M. Anderson and Sheldon E. Sloan arrived at the scene on the west end of the island.

McElroy volunteered the services of his 18-foot speed boat which made the round trip in one hour and 15 minutes.

The injured Sea Explorer was placed aboard the boat, along with Richard Strahan who was suffering sun burn.

Aikens made the journey to hold the gig steady so movement would not further injure the leg.

Members of the sheriff's department, Pascagoula police and physicians Dr. George W. Hicks and Dr. Daniel J. Enger, who treated the boys before they were carried to Singing River Hospital met the boat
